

NEW YORK TAKES FIRST FROM CARDS

CITY SEWERS AGAIN BEFORE COUNCILMEN

Old Resolution On System
Extension Repealed—New One Passed.

City council repealed and passed resolutions at its regular session Wednesday night on the extension and improvement of Circleville's sanitary sewer system.

The resolution adopting plans for extension of a sanitary sewer system, passed by council April 18, 1928, was repealed but a resolution was passed declaring it necessary to improve parts of Edison-ave., Pickaway-st., Court-st., Clinton-st., Ohio-st., Renick-ave., Corwin-st., Union-st. and Abernethy-ave. by construction of sanitary sewers as and for an extension of the sanitary sewer system.

A resolution of respect was read before council, paying sincere tribute to Henry Leist, a deceased member of council. The resolution was adopted and will be placed in the journal. The members of council on the committee of respect were: E. S. Neuding, C. O. Leist and Clark Will.

Mayor B. T. Hedges gave his report of fines collected for the month of September as $166.30.

NEEDS FIRE LADDER

City Solicitor Paul Adkins reported to council that he had been billed for $18.80 for stenographic work at the hearing of the Citizens Telephone Co., before the Public Utilities commission. The bill was referred to the finance committee.

Talmer Wise, fire chief, then reported to council that the longest serviceable ladder at the fire department is 24 feet long. He recommended that council buy a ladder 60 feet long. In case of a downtown fire the department would be greatly hampered without a ladder long enough to reach to the downtown buildings. He also asked that council consider the purchase of a life net. Many towns the size of Circleville have purchased these nets, he said. The chief was then asked the condition of the hose at the department. A small hose 200-ft. long and 200-ft. of new booster hose is needed. The remaining 200-ft. of the booster hose was new in the spring. The old booster hose is 14 years old.

The chief also reported that there are three leaking hydrants in the city. The chief was asked by council to keep a check on the hydrants and report to the safety director who would then report to council. The matters of the new ladder and life net were referred to the safety committee of council.

ASKS FOR COAL

L. E. Miller, service director, reported to council that $427.59 more money is needed for coal at the Memorial hall as there was a shortage in the amount purchased for the building. The appropriation of money was referred to the finance committee.

Miller reported that the city cottage needs re-roofing and that several small leaks have been found in the city building. In the pelfry of the city building, one of the bell supports has rotted away and the other one is in very bad condition. Mr. Miller declared "if that bell falls it will go to the cellar." Two alleys in the city need grading. Mr. Miller said. One of the alleys is in the rear of the Wylie property on E. Main-st. and the other is at the side of the Weill property on E. High-st. A light was also asked for Folsom-ave.

Councilman Baker reported to council he had instructed the sanitary sewer engineer of the January (Turn to page seven, please)

PICKAWAY-CO HOGS WILL GO TO CUBA

The Hamman Bros farm near Hampport, was visited last week by an agent of the Gayosso Bros of Horn Lake, Miss., who offered five junior yearlings and a gilt for a consignment of a bred Hampshire breeding stock which will be sent to Cuba. The Hamman Bros pure bred Hampshire breeders, recently sold Frank C. Oren, of Wilmington, a spring gilt which were shipped direct to Chattanooga, Tenn., where they will be shown this week and on the remainder of the season with Oren's stock.

EAGLES FAIR STARTS WITH LARGE CROWD

High Class Entertainment Is Presented by Lodge At Memorial Hall.

Patronized by an exceptionally large crowd, the Eagles fair in Memorial hall auspiciously started Wednesday night and will continue each night for the remainder of the week. The hall is decorated in the red, white and blue colors of the lodge and presents a carnival setting for the fair.

The various booths were very well patronized by the crowd, exceeding expectations for the opening night. An apology was made, however, because of the fact that $1500 worth of merchandise being shipped here by rail was lost in transit, and later was found in Zanesville. Trucks were sent out immediately to try to get the merchandise back in time for the fair, but did not get here until 11 p. m. Everything will be in full swing Thursday night, and every booth will be filled with high class prizes.

THREE FREE ACTS

Many attractions are there for the visitor, including a high class vaudeville act direct from Keith circuit. Miss Jennie Crotti has a song and dance act that is exceptionally good and the crowd showed its appreciation by applauding for more, calling her back several times.

George and George have an act entitled "A Pair of Nuts" that is also a song and dance turn. They excel with their comic dancing and it is a real treat for any one who likes to see and hear tap dancing. There is also a juvenile act staged by Miss Frances Wisecarver who is but six years old. And for her age, she is a very clever singer and dancer. All of these acts are free. No admission is charged to get into the fair, and at 10:30 the free acts start.

PRIZES GIVEN AWAY

After the free acts, prizes are given away nightly. Merchants of the city have coupons that are absolutely free for the asking, and each one may win the holder a beautiful prize. Wednesday night Miss Norma Voll, the little daughter of Christine Voll of E. Will-st won the free prize. It was a beautiful walnut mantel clock. A prize will be given away every night of the fair.

The Eagles are taking this means of raising funds to help build a new home for the Order and if the crowd continues to patronize the fair it will be a success.

ROSS-CO LINE MAY BE NEXT BORER PATROL

Quarantine Against Corn Pest
Probably Will Be Moved South.

The state and federal corn borer control departments while scouting in Pickaway-co found the corn borer in new areas, but as a very small infestation. Their patrol next year will possibly be moved to the Ross-co line, according to H. S. Lewis, manager of the farm bureau.

The report of the scouts of the infested areas will be received by the farm bureau in the near future. Practical experience in the infested areas of Canada and northern Ohio show that good, clean farming is successful in checking the spread of the borer. These experiences recommend low cutting; ensiling as much of the crop as practical; shredding; pasturing standing corn, and pulling the stalks so they can be burned.

CANADA WINNING

Deep clean plowing is also a great check against the spread of the borer.

Anomologists from the corn belt states representing universities, experiment stations and the U. S. department of agriculture, have found that in Canada the farmers have increased their farm acreage 100 per cent over the corn acreage of 1927 and the Canadian authorities report a reduction of 28 per cent in the borer population in the six western counties of the province of Ontario as compared with last year.

INFESTATION GROWS

In Ohio almost every county in the heaviest infested area had an increased borer population. The heaviest increases were in Henry, Fulton, Wood, Sandusky, Huron and Summit counties. In some of the counties having less than one per cent infestation last year the infestation this year ran from one to five borers per hundred plants. In Hardin-co, a border county to the worst infested section of Ohio, there was less than one per cent infestation in 1927 and some of the fields this year had an increase of nine per cent.

LOCAL CHIRO FACES BOARD

Charge of Practicing Medicine Without License To Be Probed.

The Ohio State Medical Board will make an investigation in Circleville concerning charges that C. E. Bowers, local chiropractor, has been practicing medicine without a license, it was learned Thursday, following a hearing before the board in Columbus this week.

Dr. Bowers and his attorney, Charles Gerhardt, appeared before the board in Columbus for an informal hearing. The board ordered a further investigation of the allegations and set Jan. 4, as the date for the hearing. The charges are said to have been preferred against Dr. Bowers in September, but neither he nor his attorney will discuss the case. A number of Circleville physicians attended the hearing but they decline to give out any information concerning what transpired. The hearing was conducted behind closed doors and newspapermen were excluded.

DEAD MOTORIST'S BODY UNCLAIMED

The body of the colored man believed to be Fletcher Young, 49, of 633 E. Columbia-ave., Detroit, Mich., is still being held here pending word from relatives. The body is at the Mader and Ebert funeral home.

The man was found dead in a Ford car which had run into a ditch on the Scioto Trail three miles south of Shaderville, a Harrison-twp Tuesday afternoon. He is believed to have died of heart trouble.

Sheriff Frank Davis has sent telegrams to three different addresses but has received no answer.

COURT MAKES FAST SPEED

Men Arrested On Thievery
Charges, Soon Face Grand Jury.

The Pickaway-co grand jury concluded its session at 2:30 p. m. Thursday after investigating 38 cases and examining 100 witnesses. It went to visit the county jail before reporting to the court its findings.

Fifteen minutes after Curtis Walton, 19, and Lara McCartney, 45, of Lancaster, were brought to the Pickaway-co sheriff's office on charges of chicken stealing they were before the grand jury Wednesday. The men were brought to Circleville by a Fairfield-co deputy sheriff who apprehended them when they were selling the chickens to a produce dealer.

The men are alleged to have stolen nine fowls from J. L. May, Walnut-twp, three from H. A. Rinehart, Circleville-twp, and two Goodyear tires from the garage of Clarence Easter, Walnut-twp.

McCartney has a past record for chicken stealing in this section having been arrested in March, 1928, for stealing chickens from Fairfield-co, according to the sheriff's office. He was arrested at Bloomfield and was sent to Lancaster. He was fined $200 and costs and served out the time in the Fairfield-co jail. He was released Sept. 12 and then went back to his former business of hen house raising, according to the sheriff's office.

AGED RESIDENT OF AMANDA IS INJURED

Mrs. Samuel Porter, 75, was painfully bruised and is suffering from nervous shock sustained when she fell down an open cellarway Wednesday night at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ida May Reeves, also of Amanda.

Mrs. Porter had been visiting with her sister and had gone to the kitchen to get her coffee when she fell into the cellarway. The accident occurred about 9 o'clock.

She was taken to the home of her daughter Mrs. George Shafer in Amanda. Her injuries were attended by Dr. Kefauver.

FIND 8 CHILDREN TO BE TUBERCULAR

Eight children have been taken from three schools in Pickaway-co with tuberculosis according to G. W. Heffner, county health commissioner. One of them had to be sent to a hospital. The schools which were inspected were Five Points, South Bloomfield and

VIC, BROKE, WILL RETIRE FROM OFFICE

Ohio Governor Says He Is Going Into Business To Make Money.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 4.—There is no money to be made in public office, if a man is to remain honest. You can take that from Governor Vic Donahey, who declares he will retire from the governorship next January practically broke and wholly cured of his desire to hold public office in the future.

Donahey's name has been mentioned in connection with the U. S. senatorship and when this was brought to his notice he declared his intention to retire from politics and devote his attention to making a little money for himself and family in old age.

TO ENTER BUSINESS

"I would not have this office again if they presented it to me on a silver platter," Donahey said referring to the governorship. And he added: "Nor would I have any other office."

The governor declared he would enter business at a modest salary after leaving the governor's office but he declined to outline his plans or indicate what that business would be.

SAVES $1000 YEARLY

"I want the people of Ohio to know exactly where I stand. By economizing in every possible way by wearing cheap clothing and living simply it is possible for me to save $1,000 a year out of the governor's salary of $10,000."

Donahey displayed a bank book which indicated a balance of $6,022 saved during his six years as governor. In addition he has a house, with a mortgage on it, which he bought with the money that came to him from his father's estate.

"I have nothing else in the world," the governor said, "so I have concluded it is time for me to get out while my health is good and establish myself for old age. I have tried to give the people of Ohio the best administration of which I was capable. I wanted to give Ohio a clean government. I have made mistakes I know but they have been mistakes of judgment."

BURGLARS TAKE $55 FROM RIGGIN SAFE

Police were notified Thursday that the H. E. Riggin produce establishment, Western-ave., had been broken into and $55 and a rifle stolen sometime Wednesday night. The safe, which was in the office, was on day lock and undoubtedly the thieves were familiar with the office.

A small target rifle was stolen from the office but was later found along the N. & W. tracks. A screen was torn from a window on the south side of the establishment, but it is believed entrance was gained through a side door. The staple holding the door had been torn off.

MRS. ELVIRA WOLFE DIES IN COLUMBUS

Mrs. Elvira Wolfe, 68, died at her home in Columbus at 1 p. m. Wednesday of paralysis. She is survived by these children: Paul and John Wolfe, at home; Mrs. Earl Miller, Chris Wolfe, Mrs. A. L. Stewart, of Columbus, and Mrs. Martin Southward, of New Holland.

Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Harble, at Church of Christ, in New Holland at 1 p. m. Friday, Oct. 5. Burial will be in the New Holland cemetery.

FEEDS POISON TO CHILDREN

Cleveland Mother, Fearing
Poverty, Makes Fatal
Ice Cream.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4.—A young mother was in the prison ward at city hospital today accused of killing her three-year-old daughter and attempting to end her own life and those of two other children with poisoned ice cream.

She was Mrs. Anna Kempf, 28. Her condition is critical. The baby girl Mary died at 5:30 a. m. after physicians had worked for six hours trying to save her.

Two other children, Julia 7 and Margaret 6, were recovering from the effects of the poisoned cream, and were back home. Police said a murder charge would be filed against Mrs. Kempf if she recovers.

Mrs. Kempf told Detective Sergeant Patrick Ryan that she and the children ate ice cream into which a quantity of powerful rat exterminator had been mixed.

Despondency over her troubles in keeping the little family together since she and her husband separated several months ago was given as the reason for her act, Serg. Ryan said.

DEAD WOMAN IS FOUND IN HOME

London Police Investigating
Death of Miss Grace
Dagon.

LONDON, O., Oct. 4.—Madison-co authorities today were investigating the death of Miss Grace Dagon, 40, formerly of Columbus who was found dead in her home last night, with a bullet through the back of her head.

Miss Dagon came to London last summer, purchased an acre of ground outside of the city and built a home in which she lived alone.

While her home was being built Miss Dagon lived with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Thompson, who lived nearby. Thompson and a neighbor, in passing the Dagon home, noticed that the screen door had remained in the same position for the past four days.

With Marshal J. C. Crabbe, they went to the home last night to investigate and found Miss Dagon on the floor with a 25 automatic bullet in her head. The gun was found beneath her body.

Although Coroner J. T. Baker gave a temporary verdict of suicide, Sheriff Ed Baughner will continue his investigation. Miss Dagon's feet were lodged tightly under a couch in the house and officials believe it possible she might have been slain. Baughner is to search for an auto, seen parked several times in a lane near the home.

WEE WILLIE LET'S YANKS SCORE EARLY

Waite Hoyt Is Huggins'
Choice On Mound For Initial Contest.

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Columbia Lou Gehrig's double in the first inning, which scored Babe Ruth, who had previously doubled, started the down fall of the St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of the 1928 World Series. Final figure was 4 to 1.

Collaborating with Gehrig for honors were Ruth and Long. Bob hit a real one into the high field bleachers on the fourth inning, scoring Ruth. Ruth was on second, by virtue of a second double.

Sunny Jim Bottomley hit a home run in the seventh inning. It was the longest homer ever hit in Yankee Stadium.

Waite Hoyt, the Brooklyn Mortician, held the Cardinals to three well scattered hits and was never in danger.

Sherdel, St. Louis starting pitcher was charged with defeat. He was relieved by the seventh inning by Edvestor Johnson.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The a white ball across the diamond.

The world series is on. Waite Hoyt, premier right hand pitcher for the New York Yankees, has delivered his initial effort.

Seventy-five thousand fans today welcomed the opening pitch of the 1928 world series with the familiar throaty yell which always distinguishes the post-season battle for the championship of the world.

CARDINALS FAVORED

For the first time in six years, the New York Yankees were not favorites to win the baseball championship of the world.

Every logical evidence favored the National league champions as they lined up for the world series.

Next to the nervousness displayed by Bill McKechnie, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, the most extraordinary phase of the conflict was occasioned by Miller Huggins' worry over his substitutes.

The American league champions were faced with the possibility of having to enter the series with three or four utility players, consequently, the odds on the St. Louis Cardinals were no less than two to one.

YANKS DANGEROUS

Even with the odds two to one against them, the Yankees were dangerous. Any club which includes in its roster Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig is destined to make trouble.

Not within the past 15 years has a National league pennant winner been such an outstanding favorite.

AUTO, SKIDDING ON ROAD, IS DAMAGED

The Chevrolet coupe of Mrs. C. H. Hunn of Chillicothe, was damaged Thursday at 10:30 a. m. when it skidded on the wet macadam five miles north of Circleville on the Columbus pike. Mrs. Hunn did not understand about the skid on the road, and had driven through, expecting to detour at Dave Six's home, as she had done a week ago.

The road has been torn up south of that point, now, and when she came upon the men working she put on her brakes and skidded from one side of the road to the other finally crashing into a Ford in front of her.

The radiator was crushed under her car, but the Ford was not damaged. She called her husband in Chillicothe, who came up to arrange for the repairs on the car.

Advertising Made Beauty Necessity, Is Expert's Claim

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Newspaper and magazine advertising columns have made beauty as indispensable to modern American men and women as food and fresh air, Oscar Leve, St. Louis Mo., beauty expert believes.

Speaking before the convention of the National Beauty and Barber Supply Dealers' association here yesterday, Leve said that modern advertising has made it possible for even the poorest Americans to understand the secrets of careful grooming.

"Advertising carries to the remotest cross-road the same beauty suggestions that have aided the man and woman of the city, and the poorest farmer's wife now saves her pennies to buy her favorite brand of make-up," Leve continued.

"The life of the country dwellers is being broadened by their new interest in themselves," he said. "They no longer are satisfied with what Nature has given them but are spending increasing numbers of their leisure moments to bring themselves up to the ideal of woman and manhood which national advertising has given them."

DEATH CAUSED BY AGE'S INFIRMITIES

Mrs. Carolyn Mowery, 76,
Dies At Home and Hospital Thursday.

Miss Carolyn Mowery, 76, a resident of the Home and Hospital for the past three years, died there Thursday at 3:30 a. m. Her death was due to infirmities of advanced age.

She was the daughter of Jacob and Mary Fraunfelter Mowery, of Salt Creek-twp. She lived her entire life on the home farm until she entered the Home and Hospital in Circleville.

She is survived by two nephews N. E. Reichelderfer, of Park Place, Circleville, and A. A. Reichelderfer, of Kingston. A niece, Mrs. Stella Thomas, of Tarlton, also survives.

The funeral services for Miss Mowery will be held in the Tarlton Evangelical-Lutheran church, probably Saturday afternoon. These arrangements, which are in charge of H. E. Deffenbaugh, funeral director, have not been definitely decided.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

KONJOLA RESCUES YOUNG LADY FROM NERVE COLLAPSE

Health Restored By Two Bottles of Master Medicine After All Else Has Failed.

MRS. HERBERT RALSTON

The good news of Konjola's triumph over ailments of the stomach, bowels, kidneys and bowels, and over rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, travels fast and far. From Cincinnati comes the report of a typical case of the rapidity and thoroughness with which this modern medicine works. Mrs. Herbert Ralston, 2540 Trevor Place, rejoicing with new health, gladly tells of her experience with Konjola.

"For six months I suffered from extreme nervousness, insomnia and as a result, from a generally rundown system. Due to loss of sleep and a diminishing appetite, I felt myself growing weaker from day to day and I was on the verge of a nerve collapse. I tried two different doctors and various medicines, but nothing seemed to give me relief. Then a friend of mine suggested that I try Konjola. The day I started with this medicine was the turning point of my long illness. After finishing the second bottle, I felt like a new person. Stomach trouble, nervousness and my general weakness are all gone. To me, Konjola is simply wonderful. It has meant a new life to me."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, O., at Mykran's Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Adv.

FUTURE IS PICTURED BY 'PHONE EXPERTS

Accuracy of Their Predictions Is Tested This Year in Two Ohio Cities

The future growth of a community is an important consideration in the operation of a telephone system, for telephone extensions must be designed to take care of new service requirements for many months or years in advance. Therefore, telephone companies make careful studies to determine population trends and increases that can be expected five, ten and 20 years in the future. On the strength of this and similar information, they base their expectations for telephone installations and the requirements for new lines and equipment.

It is interesting to see how these estimates work out. Occasionally a city may have abnormal growth and it may exceed the telephone estimates, or the opposite may happen. In two important cities past estimates of The Ohio Bell Telephone Company have been brought into review this year, however, and it was found that the predictions for growth had been realized very closely.

In 1921 the survey engineers estimated that Cleveland and its near-by suburbs would have 1,252,000 persons by 1930. So far the increase has been in proportion to that estimate, the present population being about 1,200,000. In Akron, local developments have made city interests very optimistic, and in a recent editorial citing industrial expansion, the Beacon-Journal of that city says: "Every element of current local growth has been in line with the survey recently made by the Bell Telephone Company."

That Ohio as a whole is easily keeping up with expectations for business growth during 1928 is shown by the fact that 21,537 telephones were added to the company's system during the first six months of the year. The estimated gain for all of 1928, made late in 1927, was 38,000 telephones. On July 1, the company had 623,410 telephones.

BUS TO LOGAN ELM

The committee for the celebration of Ohio History Day at Logan Elm Sunday has made arrangements for a school bus which will operate between the Boggs Hotel and the Logan Elm Park Sunday, in time for the program. Anyone who has no other way to get to the park can ride in this bus for 50 cents round trip.

Where Courtship Is Privilege of Women

Not only does the Courtship in some districts of Indo-China make the proposal, but with her also lies the initiative for divorce. Moreover, when divorce occurs, which it does often, the wife retains the home, the children, and one-third of the property.

Even more favored is the girl of the "maternal kinship" tribes of Assam. She proposes, and, if he accepts, the marriage takes place and the husband must then come and live with her people. And the wife may divorce her husband when she pleases. Or, so doing, indeed, she gains much, for she not only keeps the children and her own property, but all her divorced husband's property as well. If a husband divorces his wife he must still surrender his entire property and the children to her.

The maiden of Bonda Porjas in southern India resorts to a severe test when selecting a husband. The chosen man has to accompany her into the jungle, where she applies fire to his bare back. If the pain draws a yell from him he is contemptuously rejected. She takes him for a husband only if he suffers in silence.

In Borneo, among the Kalahit people, it is always the girl who conducts the courtship. From the Continental Edition of the London Daily Mail.

THEATRES

IRENE RICH IS STARRING

"Beware of Married Men" starring Irene Rich is the feature at the Grand Theater Thursday night.

It is the affairs of two sisters, who are thrown by circumstance into the clutches, more or less agreeable, of several men, married and otherwise. The older sister appoints herself as guardian over her flapper sister, and what happens makes up this hilarious play. Added features are a Mickey McGuire Comedy and Fox News.

ANOTHER NICHOLS' PLAY

Another of Anne Nichols' plays has come to the screen.

The famous author of the equally famous "Abie's Irish Rose," which ran for more than five years in New York City, shattering all world records, has contributed another of her sparkling plays to the silver screen.

The new picture is "Just Married," adapted from Miss Nichols' stage farce of the same title. It is now showing at the Metropolitan theatre.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

COUNTY BUYS QUANTITY OF SEED WHEAT

Grain Bought In Northern Ohio Is Distributed In Pickaway-Co.

Nearly 60 cars, more than 60,000 bushels of wheat of Ohio varieties has been distributed this fall by the service department of the Ohio Farm Bureau, according to a report received at the office of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. The distribution was made to aid wheat growers in overcoming the shortage of seed wheat that existed in many parts of the state this fall.

Long before harvest it was apparent that the short crop would make the securing of satisfactory seed supplies difficult in many sections. There was real danger of the importation of wheats which, if mixed with Ohio varieties, would destroy Ohio's reputation on the market for pure strains of soft red winter wheat for milling purposes.

Survey of the situation showed a considerable surplus of good wheat in some sections, and that there would be plenty of grain which was suitable for seeding purposes if it could be properly distributed. Before harvest, M. R. Maney of the grain department of the state organization, arranged for the securing of this wheat, and for its recleaning that it might be satisfactorily used for seeding if desired.

The surplus was made up mostly of Trumbull and Fuhlio, typical of the varieties developed to meet Ohio conditions. It was secured in northern and eastern Ohio, particularly in Wayne, Richland, Erie, Huron and Ottawa counties, and distributed to the central, southwestern and western sections of the state, with the largest bulk going to Pickaway, Franklin, Fayette and Ross counties.

Almost no wheat of unadapted varieties has been brought into the state, in Mr. Maney's opinion, due largely to the farm bureau's distributive efforts, and the educational efforts of the agricultural extension service of Ohio State university.

MEETS IN CHICAGO

The annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation will be held in Chicago on Dec. 10, 11 and 12, says an announcement received at the office of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. The meeting this year will mark the biennial election of officers for the organization and many Ohio organizations are expected to attend.

A Calendar of Ohio Birds

OCTOBER

By Prof. Allen C. Conger, of the Department of Zoology, Ohio Wesleyan University.

Who can doubt the approach of winter now? Woodlands are turning to flame and gold. The tang of leaf smoke is in the evening air. Long rows of corn shocks stand guard over heaps of Halloween pumpkins. The industrious ant and bee, yes, even the fiddling grasshopper must be aware that the cycle of the year is changing. Surely the birds know it. From the great marshes of the north comes the vanguard of an army of waterfowl to run the gauntlet of shot from duckboat and blind. The cries of geese and of ducks may float down from the darkness of the night sky and tell us of the coming of foul weather and our first snow.

As the bird population deserts northern forests the migratory birds of prey travel southward and the migration of hawks is noted. The blue jays, Cooper and Sharpshinned Hawks are on the move now, seeking their victims among the defenceless species of song birds which are being pressed south by the approach of winter.

The swallows and night hawk have already gone and now our sky seems bare, for chimney swifts are no longer circling and chattering above the treetops. Their winter home is still an unsolved question. We would hardly give credence to the idea that they fly to the moon or plunge into the mud at the bottom of our lakes, yet not so long ago people really proposed such fantastic guesses.

The Phoebe which lingers by our bridges and the Crested Flycatcher hasten to join their flycatcher relatives in more congenial climes. The blackbirds which began to flock in mid-August have nearly all gone. The Cowbirds have departed and only a few Bronzed Grackles remain.

perhaps to winter in southern Ohio.

Just as September is Warbler month, we must dedicate October to the Sparrow tribe. We now miss the evening hymn of the Vesper Sparrow. The yellowish Savannah Sparrow and the tiny Grasshopper Sparrow leave their homes in our dry upland fields. From more northern nesting regions we welcome our transient friends, the clear-whistling White-throat and the regal White-crowned Sparrow. The brownish Swamp Sparrow and the big handsome Fox Sparrow also stop for a few weeks. Late in the month our little friend Chipping Sparrow and the Field Sparrow of our countryside both leave us. Towhees (Chewinks) become scarce and we look in vain for the bright blue of the Indigo Bunting. The reappearance of Tree Sparrows and Juncos is further evidence of the near approach of winter, for they were among our first acquaintances on a mild day last January.

The Vireo clan, leisurely seekers of insects among the foliage of trees, now seeks more productive hunting grounds, where frost will not paint the leaves and then send them tumbling down. The bright Brown Thrasher, which whistled and sang from tree tops and dashed into the thicket of the fence row, has gone to join the Catbird in a visit to their southern cousin, the Mockingbird. The busy little House Wren, which scolded and sang from the nest-box under the garage eaves, bids us au revoir until next spring. Roving bands of Golden-crowned Kinglets pay an autumn visit to our orchard trees, there to search for overwintering stages of insect pests hidden in crevices of the bark. Much we owe to these restless creatures whose never-ending quest for food leads them to our cultivated plants.

October is the month in which to renew acquaintances with those thrushes which went north last spring to nest. The most famous of these, the group, carries the olive-backed and perhaps the Gray-cheeked Thrush may be found lingering in our groves and woodlands. There is really much of interest for the bird-student now, for due to migration, daily new surprises are in store in the painted landscape of October.

BIBLE THOUGHT

DEEP WELLS — Therefore with joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation. — Isa. 12:3.

PRAYER — O Lord, Thy heart is our well of salvation.

DIRTY EARS.

In two weeks thousands of visitors will be pouring into Circleville to attend the city's annual Pumpkin Show.

Many of these visitors will be strangers and others will be those who have not been here for some time.

Both classes will judge Circleville by its appearance and the impressions they carry away will influence largely the opinion of the outside world concerning the county seat of Pickaway county.

There is no doubt, as to the beauty of Circleville, but it is up to the citizens of the city to see that this beauty is natural and unmarred.

The city may be gaily bedecked for the Pumpkin Show, but its showy garb will mean little if visitors can see dirt behind her ears.

It therefore behooves every patriotic citizen to see that his or her premises are made as neat and attractive as possible for the Pumpkin Show week.

This can be accomplished with the use of paint where needed, the cleaning up of alleys and back yards, and the mowing of weeds, and the hauling away of unsightly accumulations of rubbish and trash.

In this way every resident can contribute a great share in making the Pumpkin Show a success for the city.

WHY FOOTBALL PLEASES

A characteristic autumnal sight is the squad of huskies and recruits gathered on the local athletic field, preparing for the battle to come. It is serious work as they rehearse each detail of play, and go through severe exercises to develop wind and muscle. The interest of the public gradually gathers. Soon the crowds are wending to the football seats. As the weather grows cooler, the fur coats come out, and the crowd grows bigger.

In many games the players play through a continuous rain storm, and the spectators are likely to remain until the final whistle blows. Some persons remark that they would not stay out in such a rain for any amount of money. Yet those who brave the storm do not seem to mind it. Many of them are wet to the skin, but when peoples enthusiasm is aroused, the danger of the exposure is lessened. The way people will go through such experiences shows what a hold this fascinating sport has.

The popular love for this game seems to be based on two principles. First, the love of a winner. Our people admire success and achievement. They like people who do things against obstacles.

They admire of course fine physical development, but that is not the primary interest of the football field. They like to see a player go through the opposing line, in spite of all these powerful fellows, making to admire anything that is skillful and scientific and brainy. They recognize this game as not so much a struggle of beef and muscle, as one of brains and planning and wit and strategy. The ability of the player who advances the ball, appeals to their imagination, and they cheer for him and sit out in the rain to see him do it. It is a great wholesome activity, that does credit to American sports.

CHILD MARRIAGES

The legislature of Pennsylvania passed last year a law forbidding the marriage of persons under 16 years of age. Perhaps state legislatures elsewhere have taken similar action, as there is a growing feeling against child marriages. Yet there are four states which allow marriages at 14 with parents' consent, and in eight states there is no law against early marriages with consent of parents, but most of the states require consent of parents where the bridegroom is under 21 or the bride under 18.

Defenders of extremely youthful marriages will say that if children become thus infatuated, they

THE GREAT DIVIDE

Broadway Love
by Thomas Edgefow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, one of Broadway's favorite actors. His son Frank is an idler and, like his father, a spendthrift. The girl has a hard time mothering them both. Although the father's income is large, he is constantly in hot water. On the eve of a great opening night he suffers a heart attack while quarreling with one of his creditors. Janet on the same day, accepts the marriage proposal of Gordon Pryor, young but impecunious actor, but regrets it. When she meets Leonard Quigg, a musician, who also loves her, Janet's father drops dead after his greatest stage triumph and Gordon Pryor's ardor for the girl cools. David Churchill, surgeon, enters her life.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

JANET looked at Gordon enquiringly. She half feared what he was going to say. She felt that her New England self was stronger in those days than the artist. Perhaps she was tired of artists—perhaps tired of taking care of other people. Now, she thought, that she wanted someone to take care of her. In the past days of reconstruction, Gordon Pryor had not been very helpful in his attitude. When Janet had needed a strong arm on which to lean, that arm had become flabby and weak. He had offered and talked—could he help?

And now he wanted to talk to her seriously. This would mean that he wanted her to marry him right away. Janet didn't want to marry him—to begin at once nursing and guarding somebody else. She was afraid she would have to break the engagement altogether, and yet she didn't want to hurt him as he sat there looking at her.

"I have been thinking things over," Gordon began slowly. He stopped and looked at Janet as he lighted a cigarette.

"Yes?" Janet said patiently.

A mischievous little devil suddenly entered into Janet as she smiled at him, and she longed to ask: "What did you have to think with, Gordon?"

"I was only because he looked so positively stupid, but she suppressed her wicked desire.

"About—about our engagement," Gordon went on. "While your father was alive, it was rather different. I was fairer to you, if you see what I mean?"

"Fairer to me? No, Gordon, I don't understand."

"Well, what I mean, only it's difficult to express, is that while he was alive, well, you sort of always had him to fall back on if we had married and I went broke. But now, well, you see, Janet, if I did marry you, I should feel such a terrible sense of responsibility—I mean I should feel so selfish if I took you and then failed to make good. So, because I am thinking of you, and of you alone, I don't think we ought even to be engaged. It will mean waiting, Janet—perhaps for years—and that's not fair to you. It would be just plain unadulterated selfishness to keep you waiting year after year, and know that I was standing in your way of marrying some man who could take care of you. I've fought the thing out in my heart, and I realized that's the only thing to do—the only white thing I could do."

It was unfortunate for his dignity that Janet laughed. It was not often in life that she would laugh at the wrong moment. And she laughed infuriated him.

"I'm glad you think it funny," Janet noticed he was growing red in the ears. "I had not intended to be humorous."

"You mean—in the language of long ago—that you want to be released from our engagement, Gordon?"

"I wish it? Perhaps this is the first really big thing I have ever done in my life, the first really unselfish thing," he declared in a desperate effort to save his little dignity, "and then you take that tone!"

"Then you don't wish it?"

"Not for my sake," he returned, looking out of the window.

"Can you bear it, Gordon?" she asked at length.

"Bear what?"

"The most uncomfortable thing of all—the truth? Anyway, I'm going to tell it to you, Gordon. I have a fatal habit of getting at other people's motives. I don't think I can help it. To me, Janet, you are so full of vulgar, Gordon, you are so full of vulgar, it is unfortunate for my maidenly pride that I did not see this before, because I can hardly expect you to believe that when you began this conversation I thought I feared—that you were going to ask me to marry you at once and I didn't want to marry you, not because you are poor, but because I'm tired of taking care of people."

"As that is so, then there doesn't seem to be much need to discuss it at length, does there?" Gordon asked with a sneer. "We can just call it a day and wish each other luck."

"Yes, we can call it a day," Janet agreed pleasantly. "Except that I see the whole thing now. Oh, Gordon, what a conceited little fool I was."

EASE UP! BEWARE OF NERVOUS OVERSTRAIN

What Prompts Most of Us to Flout Common-Sense in Living, Over-Indulge the Appetite and Rush Through Altogether Too Much Work?

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

SOME of the facts of life are so self-evident that they are understood by everybody. But many otherwise sensible men deliberately disregard them. The other day we read of the death from acute indigestion of a well known man only forty-seven years of age. His career was ended in the very prime of life.

In a newspaper editorial I saw some wise comments on this untimely death. They are worth repeating and pondering.

"Acute indigestion is merely one symptom of nervous overstrain due to crowding too much work into too little time."

"The human machine ought not to wear out on the youthful side of fifty."

"Americans sometimes deride other peoples who take life more quietly. Yet, after all, the simple life has its compensations."

What's the use of hurrying as we do? Every life is very precious to all the members of a family circle, as well as to a host of friends. The early and unnecessary death of one of its members saddens the whole group.

There is great sadness, of course, over the death of one who has long labored in the vineyard. On the other hand, we regret the death of a friend under fifty. We count the years he might have continued with us, to promote our happiness and to serve humanity. In spite of natural vigor, the appearance of health and the conviction of strength—something which the friendly soul has gone to the mysterious bourne. We cannot understand why it should be so.

But even though we cannot solve the reasons for these things, we are foolish to overlook the fact that many deaths are the effect of causes which are easily determined. The earliest thing in many instances, certainly, is that they are preventable.

Chief of such causes is overstrain. Whether it is a building, a bridge, or the body of a man, there are limits beyond which it is not safe to go. I need not argue a minute to convince you of the truth of this statement. You know it is a fact. Every body knows it.

Caution is the instinct of all animals. A rat never runs straight out from the gateway to its home. An elephant will not step onto a bridge until it has thoroughly tested its strength. Instinctively and invariably the brute animal exercises caution. This is a pity, because it breeds a carelessness that leads to disaster. Surely, we should not permit the thinking animal to be outdone by the beasts of the field.

Appetite causes us to take many a chance. The flavor of the food and its appeal to the palate cause us to overstrain the powers of digestion. The joy of work or the accomplishment of work cause us to overdo habitually. By that practice we lower our powers of digestion and are ready victims of overindulgence. It does not pay to overwork or overwork.

MILLION GALLONS OF ALCOHOL CONVERTED INTO WHISKY

PHILADELPHIA PROBE SHOWS LIQUOR FLOW

"Under Cover" Houses Distribute Great Volume of Booze Annually.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—About 1,000,000 gallons of alcohol are received each year by "under cover" houses in Philadelphia and after redistillation the alcohol is converted into synthetic whisky, according to an estimate today by District Attorney John Monaghan.

Monaghan based his estimate upon reports which he has received from prohibition agents who have been checking up the flow of illegal alcohol into this city. The "under cover" houses are said to operate as perfume and hair tonic factories.

The district attorney collected the data in connection with his investigation of police bribery by bootleggers and saloon keepers, who are alleged to be members of the liquor syndicate which is supposed to have made profits of $10,000,000 in the last three years.

The latest revelation in the civil service commission's inquiry into police corruption dealt with payments made to Charles Beckman, former member of the police force who was suspended. Records of the Cereal Beverage company showed that payments of $800 and $420 were made to Beckman. William A. Gray, counsel for Beckman, and Lemuel E. Schofield, assistant district attorney, wrangled throughout Beckman's hearing yesterday.

The former policeman has been ordered to present his defense today.

Says Men Seek Beauty, Cash; Women Dependability

Modern matchmaker is shown above at his desk, where he sorts out applicants for loving mates and pairs them off into likely matches. Above, prospectus which the canny Mr. Rubin somehow manages to get into the hands of likely clients, and, below, Queen Marie of Rumania, who also has a knack for matchmaking.

Helpful Mr. Rubin Tells How He Serves as Aid to Dan Cupid

By International Illustrated News

NEW YORK—Romance makes the world go round. In the lexicon of Louis Rubin, No. 291 Hinsdale street, Brooklyn, no word in the English language is half so important. Though the modest sign outside his office in the quiet, old residential thoroughfare, prominent to all and sundry that here is a "modern business exchange," where in one may deal in real estate, traffic in mortgages and loans, the real business of its owner, a little known prior is—Romance.

For Rubin is an official aid to Cupid, an efficiency expert who is second to none in analyzing affairs of the heart. Would you like a nice, attractive wife, possibly one with enough money to enable you to go into business, for yourself? Or a stalwart, promising husband to love, cherish and protect you?

Just Place Your Order

Yes? Then you can place your order with the experienced—and understanding—Mr. Rubin, whose success as a marriage broker has amazed all who know him. The chances are nine in ten that he will find a mate for you.

How does this dealer in nuptial bliss operate? What is his procedure from the time a bashful girl or an up and coming young man enters his office and admits that a suitable mate would be extremely welcome? The answer is simple. The broker merely consults his Twentieth Century files, studies the records then disclosed and requests his caller to be patient for a couple of days.

Rubin's next step is to entrust the prospective bridegroom with the lady's address and phone number in order that a meeting may be arranged—never, however, in his office. That flavor of practicality might brush the bloom off a budding romance. After the couple get to know each other (and this usually requires two or three meetings) Rubin ascertains whether they have found things in common, whether they are attracted to each other. If both believe that marriage is conceivable, the broker receives his fee, the size of the honorarium being governed by the financial state of the couple.

Agrees With Queen Marie

Like the matchmaking Queen Marie of Rumania, the little broker in Hinsdale street, clings to the opinion that Cupid isn't nearly so unerring a marksman as reputed. The little god frequently has to have a hand up, as it were. In the main the reason people seek his offices is not because they are unable to find life partners, but more often because their own circle of acquaintances fails to reveal the type of person they have set their heart upon marrying. In this quest Rubin excels.

What are the popular requisites of the average wife-wanter or husband-seeker?

"Men"—and Rubin rubbed his nose thoughtfully—"men want an attractive appearance and some money with a wife. The girls try to get husbands of good looks, but the big demand is for dependability."

Election Registration In Nicaragua Is Marked By Murders.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Oct. 4.—Four murders, believed to be of political origin, occurred on the night of September 30 at San Marco, about 15 miles southwest of Jinotega, it became known here today.

The four men murdered were propagandists for the liberal party and one of them was Juan Carlos Mendita, a prominent lawyer at Managua.

None of the bodies gave indications of robbery and this led authorities to believe that the murders had been committed as a result of the tension of the presidential race.

Only the barest details have reached Managua, owing to the poor communications from the island. Neither the marine headquarters nor the American electoral commission has received official advices of the murders.

The electoral commission announced, however, that the murders had not affected the registration inasmuch as they had been committed far from the voting areas.

Meanwhile the registration continues heavy. Wednesday was the fourth registration day and while no figures were available, there was a good turnout. There were no disorders reported.

Both the liberal and conservative parties claim good majorities, but indications were that the registration was running very close.

FARM COOPERATION IS GREATLY NEEDED

Recent consolidations in the business world are making stronger organization of farmers more imperative than ever, in the opinion of President E. C. Rector, of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. Notice of these large consolidations is being carried in the public press almost daily and is of vital interest to those engaged in agriculture.

Combinations of chain stores, flour milling interests, and manufacturers who turn products of the farm into foods for the consumer's table is showing the trend toward civilization of the buying power of those who purchase the products of the farm. Only by thorough organization for marketing large volume of products cooperatively, can agriculture continue as a permanently profitable industry with the individual farm as the basic unit.

Annual World Series Gets Underway Today

EIGHTY THOUSAND FANS PACK YANKEE STADIUM FOR CONTEST

Other Followers of Baseball in Nation Clustered Around Radios As Great Classic Opens—Weather Conditions Are Ideal.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—This is the day on which some 80,000 people who like a baseball game better than they like five dollars will try to cram themselves into the Yankee stadium and eat a carload of peanuts.

And while they are doing it other people, numbered by the millions, gathered around newspaper scoreboards, in theaters and at the radio, will follow the doings with almost as much eagerness and enthusiasm as if they themselves were there.

For this is the first day of the world's series—a sort of an unofficial holiday for wealthy employers and for office boys with sickly grandmothers, and for a goodly proportion of those classes of American citizenry which are ranged in between.

Exactly at 1:30 p. m. the big show was scheduled to start. A few minutes before that hour, Mayor James J. Walker of New York tossed out the first ball; then an umpire announced that Sherdel will pitch for the St. Louis Cardinals and Hoyt for the New York Yankees—those being the teams, by the way, which are going to play—and then the game was on.

WEATHER IDEAL

The weather promised conditions well high ideal for such an affair. There was an early morning thimble in the air, which whistled a little of frost and gave promise of a clear, cool, crisp afternoon.

Last week when the pennant races in the two leagues were at their height, New York was wild with baseball frenzy. Then, when it was all settled, things quieted down, and last night down town one had to look for an excited fan. Even around those hotels where the teams are quartered or where baseball folk are wont to stay, there was an atmosphere of exceeding quiet. Apparently all the bets had been laid, the thing pretty well talked out, and everyone was content to await the decision on the ball field.

But there was another reason for this quietude. The real dyed-in-the-wool ball fan is not the man who lives in handsome hotels. There one finds just the folks who run the show. The baseball fanatics were in thousands of homes last night, all over the city, nursing tickets for which they had paid fine prices to the scalpers during the day.

IN LINE ALL NIGHT

Others were out before the sun was up this morning, threading over the elevated and the subways to the Yankee stadium. There they joined the always interesting line, awaiting the opening of the sale of bleacher seats at noon. Some were there all night long.

Around town the betting odds remained unchanged during the day, with the Cardinals 5 to 3 favorites because, the experts said, out in St. Louis they have a team which managed to come through the season with most of its players intact and with a pitching staff notably better than the one upon which the Yankees must depend. There was lots of other betting, some of which was like this:

Seven to 10 against the Cardinals winning the first game.
Twelve to five that the Cardinals do not win the first two games.
Seventeen to 5 that the Yankees do not win the first two games.
Ten to 1 against the Cardinals winning the series in four straight games.

80,000 SEE GAME

It was estimated on the basis of demands for tickets that there would be 80,000 spectators at the opening game. Forty thousand seats have been sold in advance. Tomorrow approximately 40,000 more will be placed on sale at the stadium—including the bleacher seats. Temporary bleachers have greatly increased the capacity of the stands.

Last night there wasn't a place in New York where a seat could be purchased except at speculators' prices. The scalpers were asking as high as $50 for sets of three tickets which had a box office value of $16.50. Cheaper seats were at proportionate prices. So confident were the speculators that the demand would be greater than the supply that they were as anxious to buy tickets from those who wanted to dispose of them, as they were to sell to those who wanted to buy.

Thus far the annual flurry over a "ticket scandal" has not developed. There was much loose talk about one scalper holding the entire 11th row or the entire 19th row but he had no proof to offer.

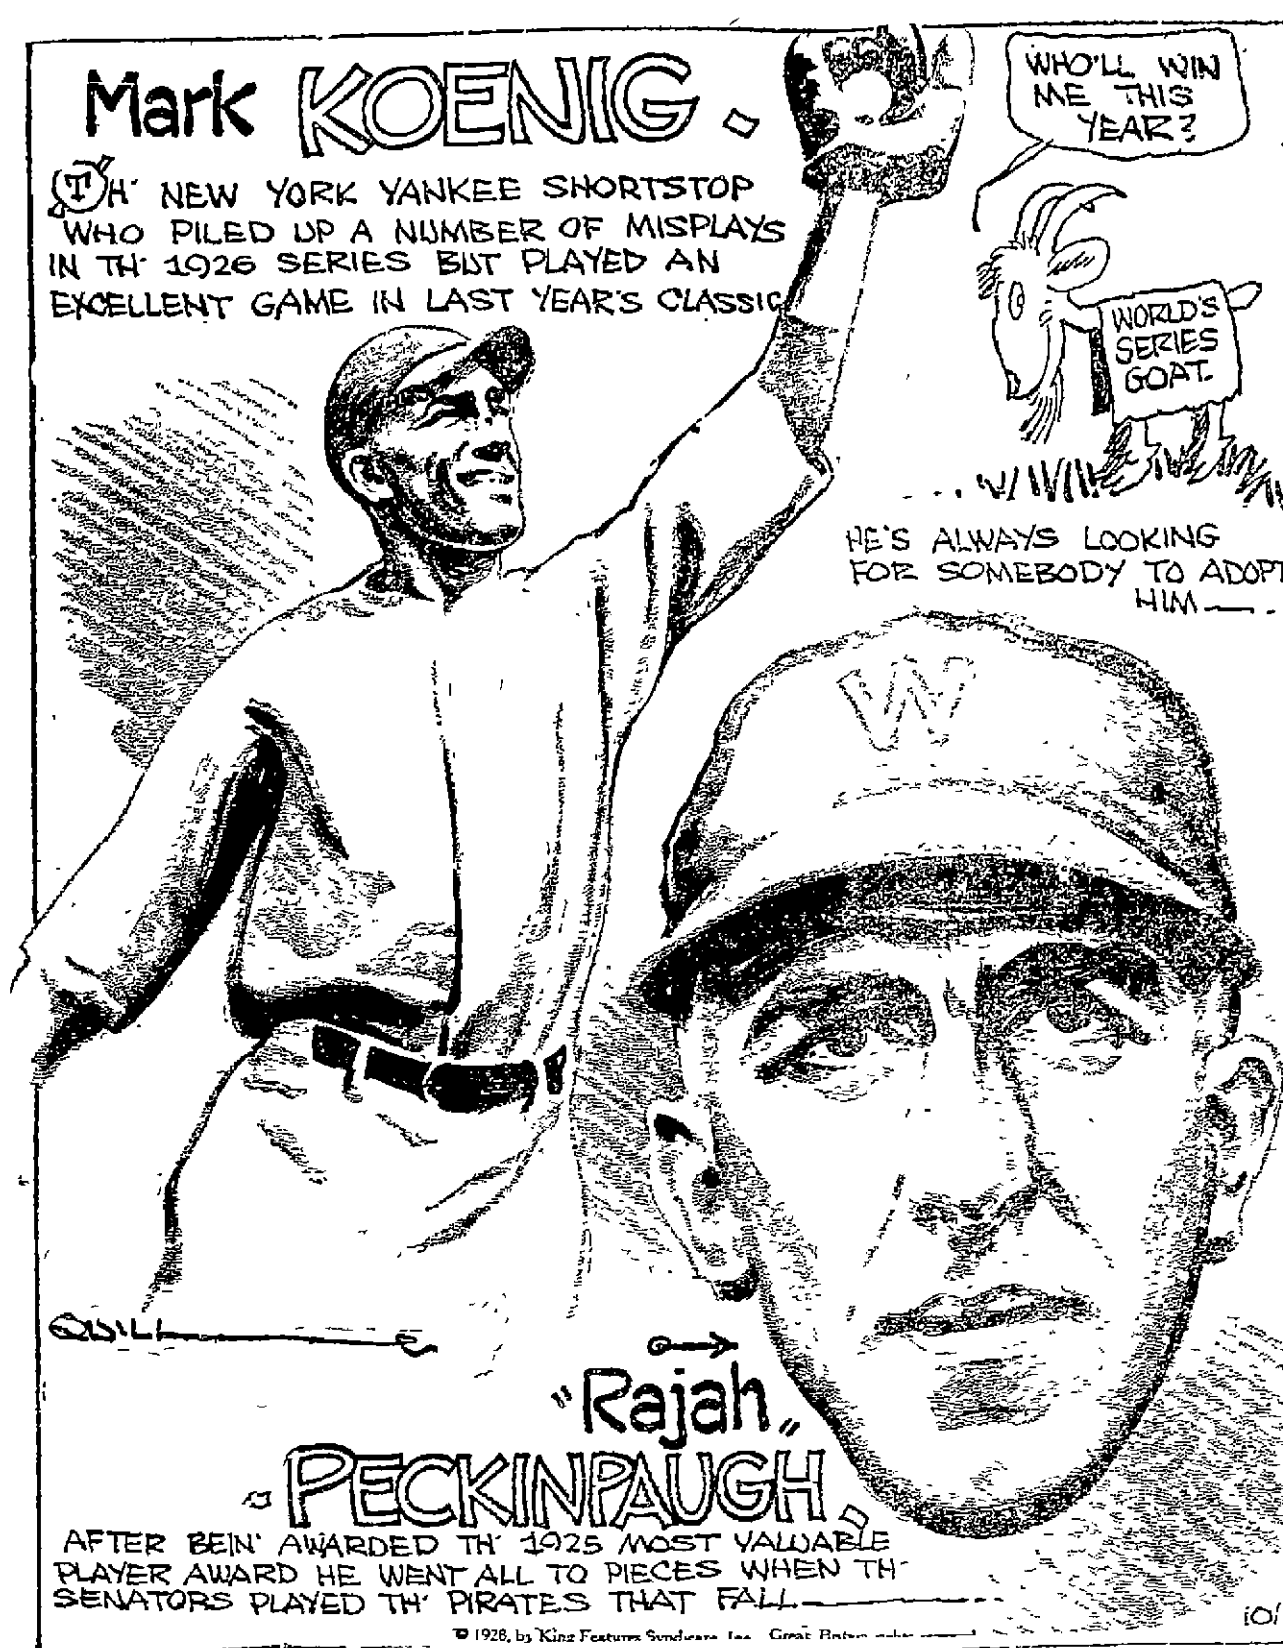

STADIUM PREPARED

All day yesterday there were great preparations going on out at the stadium. The ground keepers manured the playing field late in the day, until it looked smooth enough to dance upon. Ushers and guards and ticket takers to the number of approximately 1,000 received their badges and their instructions.

Everything was thought of—even to the peanuts. For down under the stands, wagons brought in a carload of goobers and olive-skinned Sicilians began tucking them away in sacks. It's quite a job to pack a carload of peanuts into bags, particularly the size of bags they use for peanuts at the world's series. But last reports were that the task was nearing completion.

If the crowd succeeds in eating its carload of peanuts today, there'll be another carload ready for tomorrow.

Cincinnati Manager Says St. Louis Will Win In Five Games.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, and one of the most astute judges of baseball in the game, will report the world series for the United Press as he has for the past several seasons. Hendricks' first article follows.

By JACK HENDRICKS
Manager of the Cincinnati Reds

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The St. Louis Cardinals have a great ball club, and should win the world series, perhaps in five games.

It would not surprise me to see them take four out of five from the New York Yankees who are most unfortunately crippled by injuries.

Naturally, I am a National league fan. My heart and interest are in the circuit, but this year I can see nothing except the prospect of a clean cut, convincing victory over the American league champions.

My club met the Cardinals 22 times this year, and we know how good they are. Pitching, always the most important factor in a world series, favors St. Louis by as much as two to one. I should say.

There is no use in belittling the possibility of a Yankee batting rampage, and when it comes it is one of the hardest things in baseball to stop. I think, however, that the Cardinals have just what is needed to stop it this year, even if it shows up.

The chances of the Yankees putting their full offensive strength into the field are slight indeed. On the other hand, the Cardinals will have the team which fought its way to the top in one of the greatest of National league pennant races, and had the stuff to stay there.

Alexander, Hanes, Sherdel, Rhen and Mitchell after what they showed this season, should be able to use the weakened Yankees into knots.

At St. Louis victory seems inevitable; a victory in five games at the outside is what I look for.

DENY HORNSBY TO BE SENT TO CUBS

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves has said that he and Rogers Hornsby today denied knowledge of the reported trade which would send the Chicago Cubs in exchange for $250,000 and several players.

Hornsby was manager of the Braves for a greater part of the 1923 playing season but was unable to carry his team higher than seventh place. There have been consistent rumors that he would be traded this year.

SPORTSMATTER

(By UNITED PRESS)
The eve of another world series is at hand, and with it memories of diamond heroes of the past, the Radbourns, the Mathewsons, the Johnny Rawlings, Walter Johnsons and the Grover Cleveland Alexanders.

To whom will go the individual laurels of the world series of 1924? Will it be the brilliant fielding of some infield star; will some pitcher stand pre-eminent when the smoke of battle has cleared, or will the hitting ability of such a diamond star as Babe Ruth dominate the baseball classic at hand.

George Rohe, White Sox luminary in the triumph of the Cubs in 1906, was the surprise hero of world's series history. George was the utility infielder that year, but chance took matters in hand and placed him at third base, where he responded gamely and brilliantly to the golden opportunity thrust upon him. But following the series, fate failed to smile upon "Lucky George." Rohe was rewarded with a release to the minors, a fate shared in later years by Johnny Rawlings, Jess Barnes, Casey Stengel, Max Carey, Eddie Moore and Carson Bigbee.

Matty Had 3 Shutouts
In 1905 the first modern world's series was conducted. It remained for Christy Mathewson of the Giants to turn in the classic of classics in that series by pitching three shutouts—twenty-seven innings of scoreless baseball. Every game of the series was a shutout. McGillicuddy losing the second game to the Athletics, 3 to 0.

The feat of the Braves in 1914 was the most noted achievement in the history of the series. The Braves made a gallant rally late in the season to win the National League pennant. The Philadelphia Athletics were the favorites, but behind the pitching of Bill James, the Braves won in four straight games.

Rawlings, second baseman for the New York Giants in 1921 was the hero that year in the series between the Giants and the Yankees. It was Rawlings who made a miraculous stop of Frank Baker's drive in the final game and started the double play which ended the series in favor of the McGrawmen. Rawlings came to the Giants from the Philadelphia Phillies and after the series was played and landed with the Pirates.

Harris a Star
Joe Harris was obtained by the Washington Senators in time to play in the world's series of 1923. With the Red Sox, Harris hit around .250. As a Senator Harris hit .400 in the series with the Pirates. He was the star of the 1923 playing season but was unable to carry his team higher than seventh place. There have been consistent rumors that he would be traded this year.

In the 1920 series between the Cleveland Indians and the Brook-

TIGERS WILL SEEK VICTORY AT HILLSBORO

Circleville Eleven Will Be Handicapped By Loss of Four Players.

BY JOHN HEISKELL

Handicapped by injuries and ineligible players, but nevertheless determined to keep its slate unmarked by defeat, the Circleville high school team will travel to Hillsboro Friday to play the high school eleven of that town.

The Tiger squad will enter the game as the under-dog because four of the first string players will be out of the lineup.

Captain Barnhill is suffering from a severely sprained ankle, which was hurt in practice this week. The scrimmage sessions have been hard and also put Wallace on the casualty list. He suffered a sprained ankle, but there is a possibility that he might get into the fray Friday if Adams has difficulty in filling his place at right tackle.

Cuz Durnin will be out of the line-up because of trouble with his studies and Harry Grant will be unable to play because of a death in his family.

In spite of the absence of these players, the Tigers expect to give Hillsboro a real battle. More than 50 supporters will follow the team to the foreign field.

The probable starting line-up for Circleville is as follows:

LG, Shasten; LT, Griffith; LE, Lape, C, Carothers, RG, Rector; RT, W. Adkins, RE, Heeter, Q, Hoffman; PE, S. Gordon; LH, Davis; RH, Terry.

If a poorly made O'coat cost $25 to $30 less than a good quality garment and if you were unable to afford the difference—we might say—"Fine, go ahead."

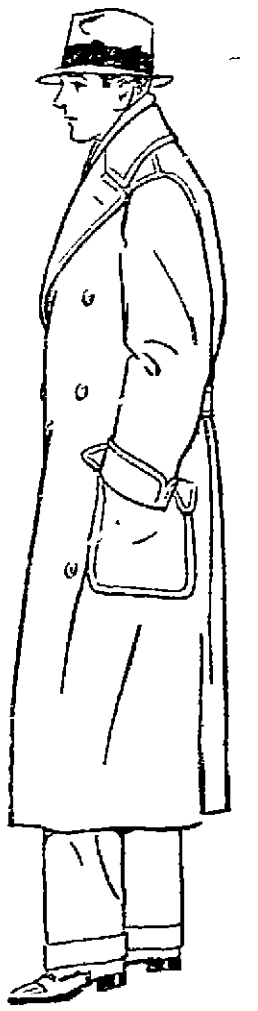

But when the cheap shoddy article is within a $3 to $5 stone's throw of the fine garment—then reckless spending is as dangerous as reckless driving.

In this stock are O'coats that are as fine as it is possible to make—at prices that make it almost impossible for cheap coats to do business.

CUBS WIN OPENER
CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Alphonse Thomas will be the White Sox pitching selection today in their effort to win the second game and even the annual city series. The veteran Art Nehf, most reliable of the Cub mound staff, will be on the hill for the Bruins. Yesterday the Cubs scored three runs and routed Red Faber in the first inning. Adkins and Connally held them for the balance of the game out Pat Malone pitched airtight ball and won, 3-0.

ON THE SIDELINES
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 4.—Coach Pat Page is devoting much time this week to training his Indiana gridgers to break up the pass attack expected when Oklahoma university, of the Big Six conference, invades Memorial stadium Saturday for the Big Ten's first important intersectional struggle.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 4.—Javeling, star punter of the Michigan university eleven, probably will not play in the Ohio Wesleyan game here Saturday. He is not sufficiently recovered from a shoulder injury to see active service.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 4.—Somewhat in the dark as to what they will run up against in their game with Wisconsin, at Madison, Saturday, Notre Dame gridgers his week are polishing up on all the defensive and offensive systems they have used.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 4.—Coach Jimmy Phelan apparently still does not know what backfield combination he will use against Depauw Saturday. Frequent shifts in the lineup during yesterday's practice indicated he had not made any selections.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 4.—"Hanson" Bruder, smashing sophomore back of Coach Dick Hanley's Northwestern squad, will not play in the Loyola game Saturday. A hip injury, received Tuesday, has become serious enough to prevent his appearance. Coach Hanley is emphasizing defensive work in this week's training.

Baker also made a motion for the construction of a sanitary sewer on Town-st from Court to Washington-sts. The motion was carried.

Solicitor Adkins reported to council that the hearing of the protests against the discontinuance of the trains on the Pennsylvania railroad had been set for hearing Nov. 7. A written protest has been filed by the council.

City Engineer Sweetman reported to council that the Jennings-Lawrence engineers had started work on their plans for the sanitary sewer system on Wednesday.

FUNDS TRANSFERRED
An ordinance was then read to appropriate funds from the general fund to the service fund in which there is a deficit in the water account. The amount of the deficit is about $260. The amount appropriated to the service fund was $275. The ordinance was passed under suspension of the rules.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

BY EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma

J. J. BENNETT, ADVERTISING MANAGER OF THE SAN FRANCISCO BULLETIN, SAYS:

THAT this is the age of ideas. An idea is like a gold mine. Lying hidden in the ground it has no value, but worked and put to service it may be worth a great fortune.

Lazy fellows who sit and dream hoping to hit on some bright idea which will make them rich without working, are about as useful as sand in the spinach.

Most "inventors" die poor. The Patent Office is full of bright ideas tied up by patents and gathering dust while some fellow with an idea not quite so bright but coupled with energy and nerve goes out and cleans up.

An empty hole in a piece of candy has made a huge fortune for two young fellows. But they did not invent the hole. It was already in the candy when they got it. They furnished the power and put it to work by working day and night themselves.

WONDERFUL IDEAS WILL NOT BUILD UP YOUR BUSINESS. GOOD IDEAS, EVEN ORDINARY ONES, IF PUT TO WORK, AND IF YOU LET THEM PUT YOU TO WORK, WILL SURELY MAKE YOUR BUSINESS STEP OUT.

SOCIETY

HUNDRED VISITORS AT PHERSON'S

More than 100 relatives and friends gathered at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pherson, near Pherson for the sake of renewing old friendships and gaining new. Folks came from all around for this event. At the noon hour the tables were loaded with most delicious things to eat and everyone seemed to enjoy his share. Watermelons and muskmelons were served in the afternoon.

After the tables were unloaded of their good things, the old folks gathered in groups and spent the remainder of the afternoon talking about olden times and events as well as the present, while the young folks enjoyed games of various kinds.

About 4:30 o'clock the crowd journeyed over to McDowell's watermelon patch, which is located on Mr. Pherson's farm, and there bought a supply to take with them on their journey home. All feeling that it had been a day well spent they gathered once more to tell of their fine time and departed expressing their hopes of returning next year.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Ridenour, Mr. D. L. Ridenour and daughters, Jessie and Esther, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Hoover and children, Zelma, Kermit and Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston and children, Charulula, Richard and Roberta, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. ROYAL NEIGHBORS IN LONDON

Twenty-five members of the Circleville Royal Neighbors of America motored to London Thursday at noon where they attended the afternoon and evening session of the district convention held there.

For dinner in the evening, the Circleville visitors were to be entertained at the London Presbyterian church. In the afternoon a drill team of the Circleville organization put on a drill. They were not to compete for a prize, but had been invited by the London Royal Neighbors because they made such a splendid showing at a recent session. The open meeting was to be held Thursday night.

The 19 members of the drill team are Mrs. Mildred Voll, Mrs. Rose Wolfe, Mrs. Catharine Pearce, Mrs. Mabel Scott, Mrs. Gladys Wiggins, Mrs. Sarah White.

SUCCESSFUL PARTY OF PROGRESSIVE EUCHE

At the Royal Neighbor card party of the Royal Neighbors of America Wednesday night, six tables of players, a nice crowd for a pleasant, sociable time, were present. They played progressive euchre, in a spirited fashion, with Clinton Drake carrying off the honors for highest score and with the prize for the lone hand. Mrs. Sarah White and Mrs. Rose Thomas also were the winners of prizes. Mrs. Myrtle Grimm was the lucky winner of the door prize.

A light lunch was served later in the evening. The organization has found these parties very successful for a social time among the members and anyone who wishes to join them, and also add to the treasury.

Mrs. Harry McGhee of Williamsport was a Circleville visitor Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Moore and two sons John and Charles of Huntsville were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Moore's parents.

Fashions

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—For daytime coats of a formal classification, Russian broadtail and mink are preferred.

Furs of a less formal nature which receive favor include flat caracul, which is considered most effective in a dark gray, straight-line model trimmed with silver fox.

At present, experiments are being made with flat caracul in new colors, one model now being fashioned of this fur dyed cardinal red. Fox in a matching shade is proposed for the collar of this novel coat. In connection with this innovation, the possibilities of more color for the fur coat are discussed.

For evening, flat white caracul is added to the list of formal furs. It is favored especially for the young girl, while chinchilla is outstandingly sponsored for more mature styles. Ermine is, of course, important, shown in one effective wrap in combination with chinchilla. Wrappy cape styling governs this model, the upper part of which is in the chinchilla with a long shawl collar, the lower section in ermine, and the two furs joined together in a curving line that droops toward the center of the back. The cape and wrappy types are favored developments for evening wear.

OPERATION SEVERE

Mrs. Jacob Heffner, who was operated upon Wednesday morning at Mt. Carmel hospital, had not regained consciousness Thursday morning. Dr. Charles Hamilton was the operating surgeon.
